CHILDREN PLAY WITH DEATH. Little Boys Find Stick of Dynamite in Box Car.

Ogden, Sept. L.—A. Y. Ross an express messenger, while passing near the commissary building at the Union depotyesterday afternoon saw three little boys playing with three sticks of dyngmite. Realizing the great danger he went over to the boys and took the explosive from them and driew it to the sew-r, thus saving, perhaps, the lives of the little tots. They had been playing around the commissary building for considerable time, and found the three sticks of dynamite in a box car near by. Not knowing the great danger of the explosive the children had already torn one stick to pieces and were using the others roughly, the wondeful thing being that they did not explode and blow the lads to eternity. At first thew did not want to give up their "playthings" to Mr. Ross, but he finally persuaded them to do so, by scaring them.
